two arches, appropriately decorated, at the end of the sistes, under which the land, as he is familiarly called. No one would suspect, to see Mr Holiand's ren dition of the parts he plays that he does not hear the cues. However, that is a fact. Mr Holland

However, that is a fact. Mr Holland inherited deafness. His father was deaf, and his brother, Mr George Holland, the Philadelphia manager, is also slight ly affected that way. It would seem to the average thinker that Mr Holland would have found his infiguration as someon handle on in the dream that the second handle of the s infirmity a scrious handle ip in the dra-matic profession. On the contrary, so cleverly has he managed it that it has been almost an advantage to him. Triv-ial noises do not distuib him and in consequence he is able to give his whole mind, unaffected by my uncertapation. ers before them when they passed down mind, unaffected by my interruptions, to the work in hand Of course Mr Holland is not absolute ly "stone deaf, 'as the saying goes He is what is generally termed "hard of hearing "

Now as to how he picks up his cues when he doesn't hear them.

He studies not only his own part, but also the entire lines spoken by other peo ple when he is on the stage. He com mits these to memory parfectly So well does he learn them that he knows just others associated with Miss Buffum in how long it takes for them to be spoken. When he is facing the actor of whom he is to get his one, of course he can readily tell when his it rn comes by the move ment of the other's lips or the expressum of the face He says though that the expression of elfe face is what he re hes on most. He pays very little atten tarily even when they are not speading a trick that would easily lead him astray The expression of the face, now ever, is a sure cas. It never fails him and always is the same

His main reliance however is on a system of counting. He knows just how Orono, in the dry goods business and for long it will take for each speech to be Getchell, in this city About a year ago said. Ho times trut speech by a certain the right number of times for the speech, he knows that it is his turn to speak This is absolutely nee some when his back is turned for aid the other actor As, for instance Mr Hill and comes on the stage his line is Well I so tetume h

Long Sentences.

Ex-Senator Evarts was given, in the preparation of ins speeches and opinions, to exceedingly long and involved though perfectly lund sentences. This gute rise to more or 'less jocular criticism on the part of the press. Some one mentioned it to Evarts one day. His eye twinkled as he said: "Yes, I know there are two classes by neonle who are very are two classes of people who are very much opposed to long sentences; one is telegraph operators, and the other is priminals.
